By John I. Scull. TUESDAY, October 28, 1817. VOLUME [illegible]

PHILIPSBURG.

The Subscriber having agreed with JAMES ROSS, Esq. of Pittsburgh, for the purchase of his real property, on the west bank of the Ohio River, opposite WELLSBURG, will offer for SALE, on the Second Monday in November next, the

Lots in said Town,

By him laid out upon the Premises.

The Terms of Sale will be as follows, viz.

PAYMENT to be made in three equal annual instalments from the time of Sale, without interest, with an allowance of a discount of eight per cent for prompt payment—bond with good personal security to be given by the purchaser, payable to the proprietor's agent, Thomas Johnston, in the Old Bank of Steubenville, or in some convenient Bank on the western waters, which may be hereafter named for that purpose.

Upon receiving payment for any Lot or Lots sold, Mr. Ross will execute conveyances for the same of a good and indisputable estate—for this purpose the conveyances will be deposited in the Bank, to be taken away by the purchaser upon making his payments.

The right of having or keeping a FERRY, will be reserved to the proprietor.

It is believed that no property of the kind has been offered for sale upon the western waters possessing more natural or accidental advantages as situated on the bank of Ohio, opposite Wellsburgh, in the centre of perhaps the richest and best improved body of lands within several hundred miles of it; in a healthy climate, and in the vicinity of towns that have flourished, and are now flourishing, but in which unimproved property is sold at so high a price, as to prevent the lower, and most useful classes of society from holding.

WELLSBURGH has long been the largest exporting town within a great distance, of articles the growth of the country. The settlement is filled with Mills and Mill-seats, abounds with coal and excellent Water. The Town offered for sale can be supplied in the dryest season, with spring water of the first quality, sufficient for the population of a large city.

A public road is now laying out from the city of Pittsburgh direct to this place, which it is believed will furnish the shortest route from that city to Smithfield, through Cadiz and Cambridge to Zanesville, and also through Mountpleasant to Wheeling.

An act of incorporation has passed the Assembly of Virginia, for Turnpiking both that road, and also to Washington, to go into effect when the Assembly of Pennsylvania shall pass similar laws. No doubt is entertained that the road from Washington will be provided for at the next session, and the work commenced in the ensuing year These roads will make Wellsburgh and the New Town the principal thoroughfare of travelling from east to west, and from west to east, connected as they will be with the eastern and northern states through Pittsburgh, and with the middle states by the great Cumberland road at Washington.

Persons desiring to purchase property in the proposed Town, would do well to remember the success of those who, at the time of their respective establishments, purchased town property in Steubenville, Smithfield, Cadiz, &c. Such has been the rise in value of the property. It cannot be doubted that the same success will attend those who may purchase in the town now proposed for sale.

The articles of agreement between the subscriber and Mr. Ross, will be shewn on the day of sale and the particular terms of public sale be more clearly stated by the Agent.

P. Doddridge.

"SHE NEVER TOLD HER LOVE."

SHAKESPEARE.

Oh! it is sweet to hush the sigh
That trembles on the lip of beauty!
To wipe the dew that wets the eye
Of her who pines 'tween love and duty!

Oh! it is sweet to soothe the breast
That throbbing swells with tender feeling!
To view the cheek in dimples drest,
Where languid sorrow's tears were stealing!

Too oft in beauty's gayest hour,
The heart within is cold and gloomy;
Too oft the smile is like the flow'r*
That lives not—feels not—yet is gloomy.

Ah! hapless woman may not tell,
She loves—though love each glance revealing!
Her heart may beat—her bosom swell—
Her only hope is in concealing.

And 'mid the weight of inward care
Her eye with chrystal light is beaming,
The smile still seems to linger there,
But sorrow's flood within is streaming.

So may be seen at eve's last hour,
When calm and bright the moon is shining,
The lily's spotless virgin flow'r,
In tears its tender head reclining.

"Tract Societies."---Under this head, we find in the Baltimore Federal Republican the following elegant and interesting remarks:---

"When Voltaire, and others of his literary band, contemplated the subversion of Christianity, one powerful engine in the hands of these Philosophers was to disseminate gratis, little tracts of infidelity amongst the poor and illiterate classes. Every man was thus furnished with a ready made and popular argument against the faith that he professed, at the expense of these Philosophers. The consequences are manifest—they have been written on the pages of that vast folio of all crime and abomination denominated the French Revolution, in characters of blood. In the contemplation of such a spectacle, we are almost induced to repeat a wish of Dr. Johnson's. that Virtue might call oblivion to her aid. Since that period, christianity has undertaken to fight infidelity with its own weapons. Tract Societies are now established in almost every part of the civilized world, for the promulgation of gospel truths, and their success has been unparalleled. The silver trumpet of Zion has been blown in the benighted reigons of idolatrous darkness. Thus has Voltaire and his whole band of Philosophers contributed to the dissemination of those very religious truths which they laboured so unceasingly to overturn; so true is that passage of divine inspiration, that "the wrath of man shall work the praise of God, and that the remainder of that wrath he will restrain."

"We cannot quit this subject which we shall very shortly resume, without noticing one circumstance.——How many christians while they beheld the successful exertions of Voltaire and other Philosophers, for the extinction of christianity, were led almost to doubt of the superintendence of a Divine Providence! How many, when they beheld the abomination of the French Revolution, were induced to cast despairing eyes to Heaven! Yet what was the result? It was this—that this very engine, formed with such labor and skill for the extermination of christianity, has, more than all others, contributed to its advancement.--Voltaire may be said therefore, without much violence of expression, to have blown the trumpet of salvation. He invented an engine for the demolition of christianity, which has proved the downfall and destruction of his own infidelity. Were that Philosopher now living, how would he lament that this engine of his own invention should have fallen into the hands of christianity! how would he lament that he had himself done so much to accelerate the downfall of his own infidelity.—Yet this is a noon-day fact that can be proved by the establishment of tract societies, by the reports of the commissioners who have attended the promulgation and distribution of those works that have wrought so reviving a change amongst nations, both civilized and savage. The angel who was seen by the disciple John, in the Island of Patmos flying with the everlasting gospel in his hand, appears to be now on the wing. We are probably near the consummation of all things—near that period when all nations shall bow at the footstool of the Redeemer of the Universe."

TO THE PRINTERS OF THE REPORTER.

"WINCHESTER, (Kentucky) Sept. 16.

"I witnessed in this place, on yesterday, one of the most interesting trials that has ever come under my notice—the circumstances and issue of which, are not only important to the parties concerned, but to society. It was a suit for the breach of a marriage contract, brought by Rachel Patton, of Paris, against Jno. L. Martin, of the same place, and removed to this court by change of venue. As the circumstances were somewhat peculiar, besides the usual interest which would naturally be excited by such a case, novel as it is in the jurisprudence of this country, a large number of citizens collected to hear the evidence and discussion. The engagement between the parties was clearly proven to have existed some years previous to the unfortunate affair which finally induced the defendant to withdraw his addresses, and refuse to comply with his contract, and which overwhelmed the plaintiff with shame and misery. The defendant attempted to justify his non-compliance, by throwing the guilt of the transaction upon the brother-in-law of the plaintiff. It appeared, however that for nine months previous to the unfortunate occurrence, this gentleman did not visit the house of Mr. Patton, more than two or three times, owing to a misunderstanding subsisting between him and Miss Patton, from the circumstance of his having cautioned her against Martin. Every step taken by the defendant, although ably supported by his counsel seemed to mark the transaction with a deeper die of deception. The brother-in-law of the defendant was fully exculpated from the charges which had been circulated against him: and much sympathy was excited in behalf of the unfortunate plaintiff, whose character previously, was proven by many witnesses to have been of the fairest kind; who had been raised by exemplary and pious parents, and had moved in the first circles.

"Mr. Bledsoe concluded the case on the part of the plaintiff, in an eloquent and appropriate address to the jury, in which every feeling of honor and humanity was aroused. He concluded with the eloquent quotation from Goldsmith:

"When lovely woman stoops to folly,
"And finds too late that men betray,
"What charms can sooth her melancholy,
"What art can wash her guilt away?

"The only art her guilt to cover,
"To hide her shame from every eye,
"To give repentance to her lover,
"And wring his bosom—is, to die."

"It was near ten o'clock before the jury left the box, and in a few minutes returned, with a verdict of three thousand dollars.

AGRICULTURAL.

A writer in the Connecticut Courant, adverting to the uncommonly large crop of potatoes this season. and the difficulty which farmers find in procuring store-room where they will be protected from frost, recommends putting them into the haymow. A hole should be first made by cutting into the side or the top of the mow, sufficiently remote from the bottom, and from the outer sides to be safe from frost, and after it is filled with potatoes, the mouth should be suffered to remain open until cold weather, lest they should injure from fermentation. On the approach of winter the hole must be suitably covered. The potatoes will thus be secured against frost, and will be easily accessible at any time in the winter for the purpose of feeding cattle or any other purpose. This mode is considered safer and less troublesome than burying them in the ground, as is often practised.

Foreign

SWEDEN.

Two of the Swedish literati, Dr. Rugellen and Professor Irah, have been sentenced to imprisonment for life, for having drank the health of Gustavus Vth as King of Sweden.

[This, connected with some other events seems to indicate, that Sweden is not unanimous in her wishes to have the most fortunate of the old French Marshals (Bernadotte) to rule over her. A few facts may explain who the health drinkers designed as their future sovereign. Gustavus Adolphus was King of Sweden until 1809, when he abdicated his throne. His son, Gustavus, who is the nephew of the Empress of Russia---and now educating under her auspices---is denominated in some of the European Kallenders, as Prince Royal of Sweden; and if he should succeed to the throne would be Gustavus Vth. On the death of the present King of Sweden, Charles XII. (now in his 70th year) it is not improbable, that the young Gustavus will put in his claim to the throne. He is near eighteen years old---of age to reign, according to the usages of Europe. On the other hand, Bernadotte is acknowledged by Sweden, and most of the other powers of Europe, as Prince Royal of Sweden; and heir apparent to the crown; and having the chief command of the army and being at the head of the counsels of Sweden, will no doubt take measures to have himself proclaimed King; and have the oaths of allegiance to himself taken by all the people. He has already installed his son Oscar, now nearly eighteen years old, as Vice roy of Norway. When the peace of Europe is again disturbed, it probably will be on account of the affairs of Sweden.]

Two inferior officers of the 2d regiment of the royal guard at Paris, (Desbaus and Clayruxe) have been tried in Paris by a council of war, for a conspiracy to take the life of the princes of the royal family and sentenced to be shot.

Remarking on this trial the London Courier observes:---"The trial at Paris of the military conspirators against the French Princes, affords, we fear, but too accurate an exhibition of the character of a large portion of the French Population. Desbans, full of the worst passions, and eager to gratify them by any means however wild and horrible, is a specimen of the human beings which the French Revolution, and the subsequent system of Bonaparte, have too abundantly produced. Many years must elapse before the effects of the shock, which the effects of those periods gave to all the institutions and modes of thinking that mitigate the natural ferocity of man, and impart to him a social and benevolent disposition, will cease to be felt in France.--- And yet they are events which have been the unceasing theme of admiration of a certain class of politicians in this country, who have the assurance to boast of "liberal ideas," and to call themselves "friends of humanity!"

FROM RUSSIA.

We learn by the arrivals at this port yesterday from Russia, that great parade took place at St. Petersburg on the 2d July on account of the arrival of a Princess from Prussia, who was to be married to the brother of the Emperor Alexander. She was escorted into the city of St. Petersburg by 40,000 soldiers. The most signal marks of respect were shown her. The Gordian knot, however, could not be tied until she had renounced her religious opinions, which was performed with great solemnity on the 17th July. On this occasion she fainted twice in going through the ceremony. She is said to be about 17 years of age, and rather pretty. On the 13th the nuptials were celebrated, and the whole city was illuminated for three nights in succession.—The new couple are said to be very fond of each other.

The Emperor Alexander pays great attention to his troops; reviewing them three or four times a week. The pay of the soldiers has been augmented, as well as that of the officers. He is also building a number of frigates and large 74's. Great improvements have been made in the city in regard to the side-walks and pavements;--in fact, throughout the Empire, he keeps a watchful eye, and more improvements have been made since the last French war, than for a great number of years before.

Mademoiselle Garnerin executed her aerostatick expedition at Rouen on the 15th Aug. The weather was brilliant,—The intrepid traveller rose about seven in the evening, in the midst of flourishes of trumpets and shouts of applause. The breeze, which was extremely gentle, bore her between east and south-east, but with a motion so imperceptible, that she appeared to hover over the spectators. After an ascent of great elevation, Mademoiselle Garnerin abandoned her baloon, and that movement caused a sensation of terror, from the velocity with which the parachute seemed to descend, until it expanded itself The fair aeronaut then executed a majestick descent near the place from which she had risen, and there received the congratulations of the public. She was afterwards escorted to the play by several gentlemen who attended the descent of the parachute.

Extract of a Letter from St. Helena, dated June last:---Madame Bertrand continues the same gay creature as ever. She was brought to bed a few days ago. Buonaparte paid her a lying in visit. She took her child in her arms, and presented it to the Ex-Emperor, saying, "Sire I have the pleasure of showing you a great curiosity—in a word, an unique—the first stranger that ever was allowed to approach your Majesty in this Island, without permission from the Governor, or an order from the Secretary of State." Boney was quite pleased at the bon mot and laughed heartily.

RECIPE.—A French physician was once desired to state the best method of eating cucumbers. "Take them from the vines," said he, "let them stand in the sun for half a day, peal them, and pour over them a large quantity of liquor, composed of vinegar, oil, salt, mustard and pepper; mix the whole with a plentiful supply of onions, & then---give them to the hogs."

HUGHES & TOMKINS,

At their HARDWARE STORE No. 150, Market street Baltimore.

THE Patentees recommend (with a confidence strengthened by the approbation of many respectable Architects and others) this new, neat and uselul Fastener; and feel no hesitation in authorising their agents to assure all such purchasers (if any) as shall not find the article to answer their just expectations on applying it to use, that the money will be promptly returned on a similar return of the Fasteners.

It has decidedly an advantage over the former method of window fastening; being incomparably more elegant, affording greater security to the window when closed, and by its certainty of self acting, securing back the shutter when pushed open or blown back by the wind, and is cheaper and better than the old method

 To those of the trade who purchase to sell again, the usual liberal disconnt will be allowed. The establishment is in its infancy, and with limited capital—therefore all orders must be accompanied with the cash.

October 18th, 1817.——eo6

PITTSBURGH.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1817.

THE ELECTION.

From the returns received, it is ascertained that Mr. Findlay is elected Governor. We believe that his majority will not fall much below 7000.

RICHARD RUSH, late Attorney General of the United States, is appointed by the President to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Great Britain. It is understood he will take his departure in the Franklin 74, capt. STEWART, from Annapolis, whither that vessel is to proceed from Philadelphia.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Prairie du Chien, to the Editor of the Missouri Gazette.

"Exertions are making by British agents, among the various Indian tribes, to embroil them with the United States. I cannot be certain whether this project is set on foot by the crown agents, or by commercial traders anxious to acquire a monopoly of the trade of these regions. This far I am assured, that the Sacs and their neighbors, are invited to view the country towards the head waters of the St. Peters river, and to remove their families there as a place of safety, before the blow is struck. This place is certainly an important point, and the government should have a man there capable of counteracting English intrigue."

EDITORIAL DUTIES.

There are few employments more arduous, (says the National Register, a work deserving merit) none requiring a greater share of prudence and firmness, than to conduct with tolerable propriety a public journal. The editor who does justice to the community and to his own consience, must occasionally give umbrage to individuals, who often mistake the simple discharge of duty for an act of personal enmity. A newspaper conducted with some ability is a powerful engine. Aware of this, exertions are not spared by individuals to enlist the passions, the prejudices and interests of the proprietor on particular topics. At one time he is assailed by the blandishments of flattery, at another by the invectives of malice. The artful, essay to win him by kindness, the lawless and overbearing threaten him with personal injury. To preserve his independence and usefulness, he must have energy enough to brave the violence of the latter, and sufficient discernment to guard against the duplicity of the former. If he be overcome by either, he is undone.

The Presbytery of N. Jersey, have recommended Friday the 31st day of October, to be observed by the churches under their care, as a day of thanksgiving to God, for the temporal and spiritual mercies of the past years and in commemoration of the 3d centurial jubilee of the reformation from Popery.

By the Constitution of the new state, Mississippi, slavery is authorised. It is a remarkable fact, that this wicked tyranny should be permitted in all the States, old and young, lying within the limits of the Potomac, the Ohio, and the Mississippi, and yet it has never found its way across the Ohio, in the States that have been formed on the other side of that river. The line of demarcation between communities that trade in slaves and the souls of men, and those that prohibit that traffic, is worthy of attention. The time may come when it will be of more importance, than the lines which divide contending armies.

N. Y. Daily Adv.

ERUPTION OF VESUVIUS.

An article from Naples, dated July 20, says—"The present eruptions of Vesuvius are astonishing. Copper, iron, alkaline acid, sulphur, sulphurick acid, chalk, and amonack, form salts that are sometimes in a mass, and sometimes divided. It is observed that copper is very much mixed with volcanick matter; quantities of it are found among the different kinds of lava. Vesuvius, which since the year 1813, has been more or less in a state of commotion, has entirely covered its former crater with a thick crust, over which the new eruptions have thrown two little mountains, from whence come smoke, ashes, and vitrified stones. The earth is covered with bits of transparent glass. The crust is so considerable, that if it is not propped up, the sinking of the matter composing it will produce an effect like that of the eruption which took place in the time of Titus."

We have seen it stated, observes the Norfolk Herald, in an English print; that in the battle on Lake Champlain, the British commander Capt. Downie, was killed by the wind of a cannon ball. Commodore Downie, according to this account, was in the act of animating his men, when a large shot passed close to him, and he instantly fell dead, giving not the smallest signs of life after the shot had passed him: and upon examining his body, it is said that no visible injury had been sustained. That no concussion of the atmosphere could have produced so extraordinary an effect is very questionable. We have frequently heard of similar phenomena's, but we rather think that in all cases the ball must touch the body to deprive it of life. A cannon ball by merely grazing the cloathing, and without breaking the skin, might we should think, cause a contusion of the intestines or a rupture of an artery, from which death might be the immediate consequence, and yet no wound be perceivable. However, it would be a gratification to hear the opinions of the scientific upon these extraordinary facts which have so long puzzled the unlearned world.

VERMONT PILGRIMS!

ALBANY, New-York Sept. 13.

A correspondent informs us that five wagons loaded with household goods, men, women, and children of this sect, passed through Cherry Valley, Otsego county, on the 25th ult, on their way to the state of Ohio. The men and women were dressed in the same style of those who passed through Sussex (N. J.) and were as they alledged, followers of the same prophet. They call themselves the true followers of Christ—Their pretended prophet came from Canada, a few months since, and is a man of "austere habits," and a great fanatic. His followers are not yet numerous, but it is thought he will increase them. He rejects sirnames, and abolishes marriage and allows his followers to cohabit promiscuously.

The men eat their food in an erect posture, and the women when they pray, prostrate themselves on the ground, with their faces downward. They frequently do pennance for sins, and seem to make uncleanliness a virtue. They allege that their prophet has not changed his cloaths for seven years. There was with the party above described, a deluded woman, who it is said, had always sustained a fair character, and who left a husband in affluent circumstances, and a family of children, to follow this prophet. It is probably the object of the leader of this sect, to draw as many after him as possible, and to form in some of the western states a new settlement similar to the one made by Jemima Wilkinson in this state.

[The wretched fanaticks above mentioned, passed through this city (Pittsburgh) on Saturday last, on their way to Mount Pleasant, Ohio.]

Lord Castlereagh has had many serious escapes from imminent personal danger. In early life, in Ireland, he narrowly escaped being drowned. In France he recovered from the dangerous kick of a blood-horse. In England he escaped Mr. Canning's wrath in the field. He is now recovering from the bite of a German dog; and Mr. Hunt says, he has yet to encounter the fierce attack of JOHN BULL. The Noble Lord exclaims against his fate and says, that he has already maintained his innocence through the ordeal by water, by fire, by single combat, and hopes to be excused from any further contention with the lower animals. London pap.

The Journals of Marseilles announce, that the Barbary powers have at length surmounted the religious doctrine of destiny, which forms so strong a link in the musselmen code and have taken precautions against the plague by establishing regulations. It is a subject of gratification to see a prejudice so dangerous in its nature giving way to the dictates of prudence and common sense; and if this precautionary system be generally adopted it is reasonable to infer, that, in time, the plague may be wholly exterminated.

National Advocate.

THE ART OF PAYING AGREEABLE COMPLIMENTS.

This art, or the faculty of exciting agreeable sensations by saying civil things, in terms not so blunt as to offend delicacy, nor so extravagant as to outrage the moral sense, is considered an enviable talent in conversation, and is an object of ambition to the disciples of Chesterfield.

I doubt very much, however, whether the greatest adept of that polite nobleman's school ever offered a compliment more effectually acceptable than one of my subscribers did a few days since, in the following note, attached to an agent's letter:—"W——K——, presents his compliments to "Mr. Osborn, and—encloses him five dol-"lars for one year's subscription for the "Watchman."

There was one circumstance attending this complimentary note, which gives a thing of this kind its chief zest—and that is the unequivocal voucher of sincerity which accompanied it:—for the mischief is in it if there can be any thing like a joke in PAYING money, in these times: Indeed I find it a very serious affair, and by no means a laughing matter.

My friends may call me vain, if they please: but I frankly confess, that the greatest profusion of such compliments as the above would not cause me to blush, or feel the least confusion! And if all or the most part of my subscribers, who have not yet paid in advance, will within a short time, manifest only half as much real civility each, as W—— K——, I will enter the lists pen in hand, as their champion, and insist, in defiance of all gainsayers, that the people of Delaware and its vicinity, are the most polite and agreeable of any in the world.

Patent Trace Chain.

THE subscriber has invented and obtained a patent for cutting and bending links to make chain of different sizes.

Chain made of those links will have a superior advantage over the chain made in the common way as the iron is first drawn into a wire which makes each link of an equal thickness and more beautiful and strong than the common chain.

To the wholesale merchant they will be sold at 21 doll. per dozen. The links will likewise be sold to blacksmiths or others at 23 dolls. per hundrod pounds with the necessary complement of rings, each chain requires six pound of links.

Orders accompanied with the cash will be promptly attended to by the subscriber at his works adjoining Pittsburgh.

THE HARMONY INSTITUTE,
And Seminary for the education of young Ladies,

WILL COMMENCE ON THE FIRST OF SEPTEMBER NEXT.

The subscriber very respectfully lays before his friends and the public, the following exposition of the principles, on which this Institution will be conducted.

IN THIS SEMINARY WILL BE TAUGHT

1. ALL the branches of a useful English education, comprising reading, writing, grammar, arithmetic, history, natural history, geography, and the use of the Globes.
2. The Fine Arts, including Botanical and Landscape drawing, the Figure, Vocal and Instrumental music, Sewing and embroidering.
3. The German and French languages.

In the endeavor to cultivate the mind with Science, the amendment of the heart will be particularly regarded, as being the only sure medium of rendering intellectual attainments, useful and profitable, as well as ornamental.

To obtain an object so important to the happiness of parents, the future usefulness and respectability of their children, and the welfare of society; the highest respect will be inculcated for the Holy Scriptures, of which a select portion shall be read every day in the public hall.

It is confidently believed that for the acquisition of a liberal education by young ladies—suitable characters have been provided, who will take pleasure in performing their several duties.

Mr. ECKSTEIN of Philadelphia, Professor of the Arts, and an Academician of the Pennsylvania Academy, has accepted the office of principle teacher. He will be assisted by ladies of competent qualifications, who will superintend the conduct and behaviour of the pupils.

To those already acquainted with the town of Harmony, little need be said, it is situated in a healthy and agreeable country, twenty five miles from Pittsburgh. Retired from the bustle of cities and large towns, the young ladies will have the more liesure for the prosecution of their studies.

Tuition, Boarding, Washing, Books and Stationary, will be furnished for one hundred and fifty dollars per annum, payable quarterly in advance. Beside quarterly examinations there will be a public one every year, of which, timely notice will be given to parents and all who take pleasure in the education of the female mind, in the principles of virtue and solid accomplishments.

Parents or Guardians who may be willing to embrace the opportunities offered by this institution, will please to apply to the subscriber.

JACOB SCHNEE, President
Harmony Institute.
